Witch Hat

The origami witch hat is a flat Halloween hat with a tall cone, a crooked tip that droops to one side and a wide brim, folded from one square without cuts or glue. It is an easy model with six steps and takes about four minutes, starting from a simple kite.

1

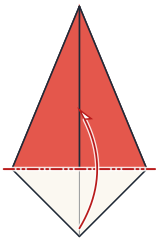

Lay the square as a diamond with the white side facing up, fold it in half from side corner to side corner, and open it again so a vertical crease runs from top to bottom.

2

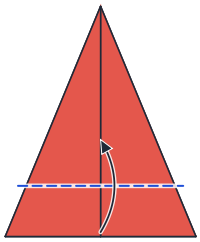

Bring the two upper edges in so they lie along the centre crease, making a kite with its long point at the top and a white triangle at the bottom.

3

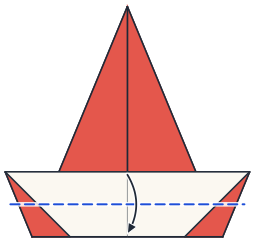

Fold the white bottom triangle up behind the model along the line that joins the two side corners, leaving a tall coloured triangle for the cone.

4

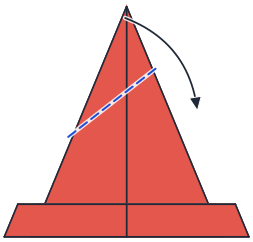

Fold the bottom edge up in front by about a fifth of the triangle's height. The ends of this strip stick out past both sides of the cone.

5

Fold the top half of the strip back down so its top edge meets the fold at the bottom. The white part disappears and the strip becomes a wide, coloured brim.

6

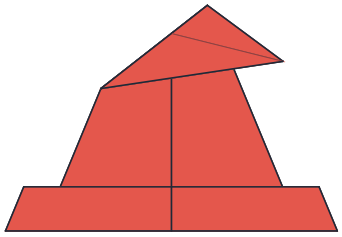

Fold the top point over to the right along a slanted line that rises from a little over halfway down the left edge to about a third of the way down the right edge, so the tip pokes out past the right-hand side and droops like a well-worn witch's hat.

Done

Your witch hat is finished: a tall cone with a crooked, drooping tip and a wide brim. Draw a buckle or a band on it, glue it to a Halloween card, or make a row of them for a garland.
